

RICHARDSON'S BAY RESOURCE GUIDE

For Questions Regarding the Rules and Regulations on Richardson's Bay, Please Call: Harbormaster Curtis Havel @ (415) 971-3919

What boats are allowed on the bay?

The bay is a recreational and environmental resource. Bay Conservation & Development Commission (BCDC) and Richardson's Bay Regional Agency (RBRA) rules prohibit its residential use. Efforts are underway to reduce the number of vessels, decrease hazards to persons and the environment and the damage to eelgrass, and to preclude ongoing residential use.

What is the registration requirement?

Current and valid registration with the California Department of Motor Vehicles or current and valid documentation with the United States Coast Guard.

What is required for vessels new to the anchorage?

Vessels coming in to the bay must get a permit from the RBRA Harbormaster to stay more than 72 hours. A permit application is available on-line at rbra.ca.org. Vessels need to be seaworthy, operable, registered and comply with USCG regulations to obtain a permit. Unpermitted new vessels will be removed by RBRA.

What bay conditions should I expect and what are my responsibilities?

Your boat or other boats can break loose or sink, especially in adverse weather/wind or compromised vessel condition. As a vessel owner or occupant, you are responsible for keeping your vessel safe - including inspecting and knowing how to properly set your anchor, keeping decks clean and clear, ensuring working steering and propulsion systems, etc. There may be times when you need to leave the anchorage to escape a lee shore or other hazards. If your boat breaks loose or sinks, you are responsible for retrieving it and for costs incurred by others. Such vessels are subject to removal from the anchorage. For more information, please review the ABC's of Boating from the California Division of Boating & Waterways: dbw.parks.ca.gov

What are the seaworthy and operability requirements?

Richardson's Bay is governed by the Richardson's Bay Regional Agency (known as RBRA), as well as by the City of Sausalito in its waters west of the navigation channel. RBRA is a local governmental agency comprised of the County of Marin, and the cities of Belvedere, Mill Valley, and Tiburon that formed to collectively manage their waters. The rules and regulations for RBRA waters are set by its Board of Directors, comprised of a council member of each of the member cities and the County Board of Supervisors member representing Southern Marin. For more information, please visit rbra.ca.gov or call 415-971-3919.

How do I dispose of waste?

Many local marinas are equipped with pump-out stations. There is a mobile pump-out service: MT Head (650) 483-5689. An operable marine sanitation device or portable toilet approved by the United States Coast Guard as suitable to prevent direct discharge of human waste into the bay is required.

What are RBRA's current enforcement priorities (please note, these are subject to change):

RBRA's Current Enforcement Priorities Include: unregistered vessels; unoccupied vessels – regardless of condition; vessels that break loose, sink or are otherwise imminent environmental or safety hazards; vessels new to the anchorage staying more than 72 hours. Other priorities may emerge with increased efforts to reduce the extent of vessels and their risks. Without voluntary compliance, enforcement actions will include citation, impound, removal and destruction. Owners/occupants are encouraged to secure a marina slips or find an alternative location for vessels.

How are requirements and priorities set?

Richardson's Bay is governed by the Richardson's Bay Regional Agency (known as RBRA), as well as by the City of Sausalito in its waters west of the navigation channel. RBRA is a local governmental agency comprised of the County of Marin, and the cities of Belvedere, Mill Valley, and Tiburon that formed to collectively manage their waters. The rules and regulations for RBRA waters are set by its Board of Directors, comprised of a council member of each of the member cities and the County Board of Supervisors member representing Southern Marin.
